Welcome, Lisa Frohnapfel

The Better Business Bureau Serving Western Michigan Board of Directors welcomes Lisa Frohnapfel. We look forward to her leadership as President and CEO of the organization and her service to the businesses, nonprofits and consumers that call West Michigan home. Under Lisa’s guidance we are confident we will make West Michigan the most trustworthy place in America to do business.
A Word from Our CEO

It is an honor, as the new CEO of the Better Business Bureau of Western Michigan, to wish you all a Happy New Year! Joining the BBB family has been such an amazing experience, thank you for the warm welcome. Thank you to Phil Catlett for all of his support and help with a smooth transition, and to the Board for this opportunity. I am eager to help take our BBB to the next level by helping consumers and businesses work within a trusted environment.

During the course of this last year we have all experienced continued changes since the pandemic. Within our communities we have championed one another to push through adversity, and remained driven to a better future in 2022. Purpose driven businesses continue to shine with trust, ethics, and excelling service. As a community, we are resilient and strong moving into this New Year.

Here at the BBB we have also been working hard to provide added benefits not only for our members, but also for the communities we serve. Looking into this New Year, becoming Accredited brings so many added benefits we hope you all take advantage of. In addition, we hope you share with those that are not yet accredited the benefits they could be receiving and why they should join.

As businesses create brand awareness and strive to stand out from the rest, consumers seek to ensure they are getting the best for their money and working with legitimate, trustworthy, service driven businesses. We assist in this through helping you build – enhanced credibility – exposure – differentiation – Quotes/business tools – marketing/profile/brand awareness – free educational programs – supporting role models through Torch and Trust Awards.

Consumers are more aware and intentional about where they do business. We are more than an online search. With your membership, we assist in establishing a BBB Business Online Profile. This is key to helping with the analytics of online searches and where you appear within the listings of businesses. In fact, Google ranks the BBB in the very top percentage of all websites viewed in the United States. As a result, when customers are searching Google for information on your company, your BBB Business Profile usually appears on the very first page, showing that your company is linked to a trusted source. Now that is a true benefit of Accreditation.

Not to mention we have proven to be a centralized tried and true source for over 100 years. The BBB is your factual, unbiased provider to help with customer reviews and complaints. We help to research, investigate when needed, and vet local businesses. This creates an unbiased resource for businesses and our community and builds trust within our free market system.

We want you to get the most out of your BBB Accreditation. That starts with letting customers know you share the BBB’s values of Trust and Ethics by proudly displaying the BBB Accredited Business seal on your website and on your storefront. Check out our website to ensure you are taking advantage of your full benefits of membership, and always feel welcome to contact one of the members of our team for assistance.

As we push into 2022, we stand together within our communities to connect consumers and purposeful businesses. As partners, we can make West Michigan one of the top places to live and do business. If you are interested in how you can support the BBB’s efforts, please contact us at 616-774-8236 or email us at info@westernmichigan.bbb.org

Happy New Year!

Lisa Frohnapfel
Earlier this year, a charity in the Traverse City area received a phony email claiming to be from the BBB. The email requested a response to a complaint filed against the business. The email used the BBB logo, came from the email address “BBB@myonlinesecuritysupport.com” and was signed “Customer Dispute Center, Better Business Bureau”. The message requested the recipient click on a link to view a complaint.

We have received a similar report from a business on the southeast side of Michigan. That notice demanded a response within 13 hours.

These emails are NOT from the Better Business Bureau, and the links included do not lead to the BBB website or any site known to the BBB.

Business owners should watch for scammers impersonating the BBB in order to get them to click on links which could download malware onto computers, or lead users to share personal sensitive information like usernames and passwords. These types of phishing emails have the potential to open your business to hackers and ransomware attacks.

There are a few ways to determine if an email is from your local BBB:

- Any email from the BBB will identify the office involved (i.e., The Better Business Bureau Serving Western Michigan)
- Any complaint or review email from the BBB would identify a BBB contact person by name, and list their direct email, phone number or both.
- Complaint numbers from the BBB are 8 digits long. Each bureau is assigned specific starting numbers. Those coming from the BBB Serving Western Michigan start with 371.
- Scam emails usually contain poor grammar, misspellings or missing/inaccurate punctuation.
- If unsure, businesses and charities should contact their local BBB account representative. We are happy to help.

In November, hundreds of business leaders joined the Better Business Bureau Serving Western Michigan to celebrate local businesses and nonprofit winners of the 2021 Torch Awards for Ethics. The annual celebration recognizes organizations who demonstrate a commitment to Trust and Ethics. The BBB also celebrated SpartanNash, one of five local businesses celebrating 50 years of BBB Accreditation. The event was held Monday, November 22nd in conjunction with the Economic Club of Grand Rapids, which has hosted the BBB for several years. Along with the hundreds of business leaders in attendance at the JW Marriott in Grand Rapids, others watched the event’s live stream.

The event highlighted a leadership change at the BBB, as retiring BBB President & CEO Phil Catlett wrapped up his ten-year tenure with the organization by introducing the awards. This was his last awards event with the BBB ahead of his December retirement. Catlett also introduced the new President & CEO, Lisa Frohnapfel, who announced the winners at the ceremony.

“With their commitment to their community, customers and teams, these businesses and nonprofits show us all the value of Trust and Ethics,” says Lisa Frohnapfel, President and CEO of the Better Business Bureau Serving Western Michigan. “We are honored to celebrate these organizations and the work they do.”

Businesses and nonprofits across the BBB Serving Western Michigan’s 38-county service area were encouraged to apply or nominate an organization. The finalists and winners were chosen by a panel of judges made up of business and nonprofit leaders in the community.

During the ceremony, each winner received a 2021 Torch Award for Ethics plaque, presented by the BBB. Winners from Traverse City to Kalamazoo gathered to celebrate in Grand Rapids.

This year’s attendees heard an inspirational keynote speech from Richard Montañez, who went from janitor to a vice president at PepsiCo. The speaker was part of the Economic Club of Grand Rapids’ bi-monthly event lineup. Accredited Business owners also had the opportunity to network with members of the economic club before the event.

The Better Business Bureau is already working on plans for the 2022 Torch Awards for Ethics. Look for application and nomination information in summer 2022.

Applied Imaging: Trust is the Foundation of Everything

From their beginnings as a printer, copier and fax dealer, Applied Imaging now views itself as a tech company helping businesses manage the information lifecycle. The company has 11 locations across Michigan, as well as Florida and Ohio. Applied Imaging is a winner of the 2021 Better Business Bureau Serving Western Michigan Torch Award for Ethics.

“For us, trust and ethics are the foundation of everything that we do here,” says Casey Lowery, COO of Applied Imaging. “Our name is really all we have out there in the marketplace and customers that know us trust us. That’s how we continue to gain market share and do the best job that we can every day.”

Lowery says the company has a passion for service, for people and for business. The company focuses internally on serving one another, and says that is the key to building trust both inside and outside of the doors.

“One of the things we say here is the more you trust, the more you share, the more you share, the more you trust,” says Lowery. “And I think here, those relationships build trust and that’s really the foundation for everything.”

“For us, trust and ethics are the foundation of everything that we do here.”

HourGlass Testing Solutions:
Do it Right with Trust and Ethics

HourGlass Testing Solutions provides drug testing resources for employers locally and nationally. The Grand Rapids-based company provides everything from workplace drug testing, to helping employers revise or create drug-free workplace policies.

For those at HourGlass Testing Solutions, demonstrating trust and ethics is part of their everyday operations.

“Drug testing can be the livelihood for an individual. So for us, we have to do it right.” Says Andrea Owens, Owner of HourGlass Testing Solutions. “Having a safe work environment brings about a safer community.”

Owens says the relationships between the clients and the company is what sets HourGlass Testing Solutions apart from its competitors.

“We are literally walking through that with the employer, so they know that we haven’t forgotten them. That’s the advantage we have as being a smaller organization.”
Grand Traverse Regional Land Conservancy:

We are Living Our Values

The Grand Traverse Regional Land Conservancy is a nonprofit based in Traverse City, Michigan. The organization serves Manistee, Benzie, Grand Traverse, Antrim and Kalkaska counties by purchasing significant pieces of land and preserving the natural beauty. It also adds trails and other infrastructure for communities to enjoy the outdoors. In its 30 years of service, Grand Traverse Regional Land Conservancy also buys the development rights of farmland and extinguishes it, to keep farmers farming on that land.

One of the reasons the organization continues to thrive is because of Michigan’s love for nature.

“It’s the quiet, it’s the dark. It’s getting away from the big city. It’s the opportunity to get out and recreate, to hike, to cross country ski, to mountain bike,” says Kevin Russell, Chairman of the Board of Directors. “All of those things are integral to who we are.”

The organization relies on trust and ethical practices to continue raising money.

“To have a badge of honor, like the BBB label attached to our name, is really important,” says Russell. “These labels tell the public that we are living our values and they can trust us when they leave us money, when they donate their property, when they agree to donate conservation easements or sell them to us. They know we’re going to treat them fairly.”

“To have a badge of honor, like the BBB label attached to our name, is really important,”

Maple Hill Auto Group: Live Our Lives with Truth & Integrity

Maple Hill Auto Group has served as a new and used car dealership in Kalamazoo since 1995. But one thing that has not changed over the years, is the company's dedication to trust and ethics.

“We try to live our lives with truth and integrity.” Says Jim VandenBerg, owner and General Manager. “Even our slogan “driven by trust and integrity” ethics is that lifeblood that sits down in your soul. Either you have it or you don’t, and we have fought hard to keep that going through our entire organization.”

Maple Hill Auto Group focuses on the customer first, and giving its employees the power to make that happen. VandenBerg says that’s helped maintain a steady flow of employees at a time when other businesses are struggling.

“We have a culture that people hear about,” says VandenBerg. “They say if you’re going to go work somewhere, that’s the place to work. That’s the benefit of integrity and honesty and truth.”

VandenBerg says receiving the Torch Award is a validation, but doesn’t change who they are. It recognizes who they strive to be and what strides they’ve taken.

“Our own employees feel better about their life, and we’re making a difference in the world,” says VandenBerg. “When it’s all done and said, it’s not about the money. It’s what we’ve done for others that matters to this organization.”

“We try to live our lives with truth and integrity.”

- Jim VandenBerg
Hutcherson Construction: Raising the Bar

Located in Plainwell, Michigan, Hutcherson Construction sells roofs, siding, decks and other outdoor finishes. But what they really brand themselves on is the customer experience from start to finish.

Owner Josh Hutcherson says the key to maintaining an honest and trustworthy relationship with the community starts with hiring the right people.

“We have to show the community that there is a bar, contractors [in this state] should be held to a higher bar, and we’re here to deliver that for you,” says Hutcherson. “That trust is built every step of the way by doing what we say we’re going to do, and delivering on those promises.”

Owner Josh Hutcherson says the Better Business Bureau helps him do that, because the BBB values align with his own company values.

“Being a BBB Accredited Business holds us to a higher standard within the community and says this is somebody that we should be able to trust,” says Hutcherson. “We know that we don’t exist today without the communities being built up around us and they’re really the backbone of our business.”
Junior Achievement:
Ethical Behavior & Transparency is Crucial

Junior Achievement’s mission is to inspire and prepare young people to succeed in a global economy. It is done by teaching entrepreneurship, financial literacy and work readiness to students in kindergarten through 12th grade. JA is preparing to open their new educational facility, to further expand their programming. The organization is finishing renovations at the former Integrated Architecture Building on Lake Drive in Kentwood.

Once open, one of the new features will include the Tom Fox Family JA BizTown. It allows students to play the role of consumer, citizen or associate of a local business. The students will run the town, get paid and vote on town matters. The Karl and Susan Hascall JA Finance Park is designed like a mall. Every store is meant to be a life decision like healthcare, clothing and food. Students will try to make the right life decisions in a safe environment. The Haworth JA Entrepreneurship Incubator after school program will let students design a business plan, create a product with a 3D printer and then run their business.

“We’re teaching young children, and we want to teach them ethical business behavior.”

- Bill Coderre

The BBB Accredited Charity relies on a trustworthy reputation to bring in donations, and to mold the minds of future business leaders.

“Ethics and ethical behavior and transparency with our donors has been a crucial component.” Says Bill Coderre, President & CEO of Junior Achievement of the Michigan Great Lakes. “We’re teaching young children, and we want to teach them ethical business behavior.”
Northern Hearth Quilting & Sewing Center: Customers Can Trust Us

Northern Hearth Quilting & Sewing Center is a quilting store in Cadillac, Michigan. The store is considered a blender store, providing a little bit of everything a quilter may need from fabric to sewing machines.

Owner Julie Dunkel says the personal attention you get at her store is lost at a big box store. She also says building trust with customers is crucial for success.

“If I’m selling a customer fabric and they like the feel of the store and feel we are knowledgeable, that builds trust,” says Dunkel. “If their machine breaks down and they want to buy another machine, I can sell a machine to them and they trust that we’re going to back that appliance up without question.”

Dunkel says becoming BBB Accredited sends her customers a clear message.

“It tells others that don’t know the business, that we are a trusted company. We are reliable,” says Dunkel. “We’re looking at the customer’s best interest and we want to take care of them. That accreditation gives value to our words.”

- Julie Dunkel

Papa’s Place: Trust During Difficult Times

Papa’s Place is an adult day care center in Reed City, Michigan, for senior citizens and adults with developmental disabilities. Papa’s Place also provides in-home care. Papa’s Place is named after owner Nicole Haney’s own grandfather, who was not receiving quality care after he was diagnosed with Alzheimer’s.

Haney says recognizing a loss of independence, asking and receiving help bring up a lot of emotions. That is why trust is so important to her organization.

“We are in people’s homes, we are doing care for people that is not always easy to go in and do,” says Haney. “If they’re recognizing that they need help, they’re only going to go with somebody that they trust.”

Haney says building that level of trust internally is just as important.

“We put our feelings and our heart on the line every single day when we go out and see people,” she says. “I’ve always had the philosophy that I would never ask my staff to do something that I myself am not willing to do. I think with that transparency, it builds a level of trust.”
Safe Haven Ministries:
Trust and Ethics is Woven into Everything We Do

For over 30 years, Safe Haven Ministries has been committed to both preventing and ending relationship abuse in our community. That ranges from education prevention, a 24-7 crisis hotline, emergency shelter and rehabilitation resources.

Building trust is a key component to Safe Haven by listening to people’s stories.

“We meet people where they’re at,” says Rachel VerWys, Executive Director of Safe Haven Ministries. “You know, to build an authentic, trusting relationship, takes time and understanding. And so that’s a commitment we have that we come to a place of being nonjudgmental, that we’re inclusive of everyone in their story and their circumstances.”

Safe Haven is also committed to honesty and ethics, which is why they are a BBB Accredited Charity.

“I think to have the recognition from someone else just affirms some of the deep commitment that we have to our mission, to connect with the community, to serve with excellence and to see transformation happen because we really believe in change,” says VerWys. “Even in the midst of turmoil and at a time when our community is experiencing increased violence, there is still hope.”

“You know, to build an authentic, trusting relationship, takes time and understanding.”

The Better Business Bureau Serving Western Michigan is proud to recognize those businesses marking 50 years of BBB Accreditation. A staple in communities across West Michigan, SpartanNash is marking 50 years with the BBB. Below is a conversation with SpartanNash President and CEO Tony Sarsam. It has been lightly edited for space and clarity.

BBB: What should people know about SpartanNash?

Tony Sarsam: SpartanNash is an innovative food solutions company. We believe we bring the ingredients for a better life to our communities, and to our stores. We have an engaging team. We believe that we’ve built the foundation of people first, and those people that we bring into our company, they love to serve. They love to find creative solutions, they love to win and we have a lot of fun doing all those things.

BBB: What can a new employee expect when they are hired on to SpartanNash?

Tony Sarsam: They should expect a company that is vibrant and thriving. A company that does essential work for their communities. What they can expect is that they’re joining a people-first organization first and foremost. Those people will have a love of service and finding great solutions for their customers, and a real desire to win and have fun while they’re doing it. We have 19,000 employees in our organization and we are very, very proud of the people-first organization we are building.

BBB: You have been BBB Accredited for 50 years. Why do you think it was important to the company to become BBB Accredited back in 1971?

Tony Sarsam: We have a long history in this community and as a matter of fact, we have over 100 years of history in this community, all the way back from the time we bought our first boxcar of sugar, our first act in 1918, and those roots are really important so that accreditation within this community provides us credibility, and that matters to us.

BBB: The values of the Better Business Bureau are trust and ethics. How does SpartanNash demonstrate those values?

Tony Sarsam: Trust and ethics are critically important. They are the bricks of the foundation of our company. Trust, ethical behavior, respect for the individual, all of those things are critical as we build a great people-first organization. Those values matter a great deal to us.

BBB: SpartanNash is a national organization, but it is still very much focused locally.

Tony Sarsam: You think about our mission statement, about bringing ingredients for a better life. We really bring that to the businesses that we serve and also the community that we serve. And being local is very important. We believe relationships at a local level are absolutely preeminent, and so we focus on that.

We’re very committed to that idea about making our communities better.

The Better Business Bureau would like to congratulate SpartanNash and all of our 50 year BBB Accredited Businesses for their commitment to Trust and Ethics in our marketplace.
A decade in education, Lindberg joined his family’s business, eFulfillment Services, which is run by his father. Jordan and his wife also started Stardust Memorials.

“My father has been a BBB member for a long time,” says Lindberg. “He really introduced me to joining. He takes it seriously.”

And Lindberg has been seriously successful. Stardust Memorials was awarded a BBB Torch Award for Ethics in 2018. He is also a member of a number of business groups in the Traverse City area. It is a community he says is special.

“We see a lot of folks who grew up in Northern Michigan and do move away, and I’m one of them. I ended up, we call it boomeranging back. At some point people decide that they want to come back because it was a special place to grow up and they want to raise their own kids here.”

Recruited in part to help give Northern Michigan a bigger voice on the BBB Board, Lindberg is serving the first 3-year term.

“Our particular Better Business Bureau has a huge footprint,” he says. “We have a lot of representation from the Grand Rapids area, but we are bigger than that and I think there should be more people who are involved who come from other areas.”

While Northern Michigan is a well-known tourist destination, the business community has a lot going on in addition to tourism. Lindberg wants to highlight that.

“I would point to my own businesses as examples of this, you know, order fulfillment,” Lindberg says. “There are a lot of high-tech companies, big companies and manufacturers that call Northern Michigan home.”

With the expansion of remote work arrangements, Lindberg says Northern Michigan is seeing a lot more remote workers moving to, or staying in, the area. They get the best of both worlds. A fantastic community in which to live and the ability to advance their careers in big companies, including Amazon and Walmart.

Lindberg says it is important for organizations like the Better Business Bureau to make sure their services are available to Northern Michigan and the entire service area.

“We don’t always have the same resources as bigger, more metropolitan areas,” he says. “So we have to work harder in Northern Michigan and in small communities to get access to those things. And I appreciate that the BBB is working to bring those resources into all the communities we serve.”

The Better Business Bureau Serving Western Michigan is governed by a 22-person board of directors, made up of leaders in the business and nonprofit sector. Each is elected by BBB Accredited Businesses to serve up to two consecutive 3-year terms.
The Better Business Bureau Serving Western Michigan is beginning 2022 with a new President and CEO at the helm. Lisa Frohnapfel has taken over for Phil Catlett, who retired at the end of 2021 after 10 years at the Better Business Bureau. Frohnapfel was selected by the BBB Board of Directors after a nation-wide search, and began her tenure at the BBB in November.

“It’s an honor to be selected for this position, and I have some very big shoes to fill, but I am excited about the work we will do for local businesses,” says Frohnapfel.

Frohnapfel comes to the BBB after spending her career in the credit union industry. “I came up through the ranks,” she says. “I have worked as a Teller, Member Services Representative, Loan Officer, Human Resources, Business Development, Marketing, Collections, and so many other roles until I was eventually CEO.” She sees a lot of similarities between credit unions and the BBB. “We are here to serve the members, our Accredited Businesses, and help them be successful. It’s about understanding who they are, their needs, and how we can help.” She has also worked as a consultant, helping businesses improve systems and manage trouble spots.

The BBB’s focus on trust, ethics and integrity appeals to her, because it’s something she learned at a young age. “Even going back to my Dad and Mom, growing up, we learned old-school about hard work. Doing things right, digging in and working hard for what needs to be done. No one on the team is more important than another, we all have our roles to help make success. Your reputation and relationships are key.”

Frohnapfel is connected to Western Michigan. A graduate of Gull Lake High School, she attended Kalamazoo Valley Community College and Western Michigan University before getting her degree from Davenport University and her masters from Cornerstone University.

She loves the outdoors, and spends a lot of time hunting and fishing. “You get to see everything wake up and you can see everything go to sleep. It’s very peaceful. It’s almost like your time to really reflect on things and have a respect for life,” she says. Lisa is also part of a local Jeep group that gets together for adventures, including to the Silver Lake Sand Dunes. When not outdoors, she and her family love to play games. “I’m very close with my family,” she says. “We really like to play games together, card games, board games, pretty much anything.”

Lisa says she is excited to join the Better Business Bureau. “I’m very proud of the history of the BBB. That history is culturally ingrained, which is amazing. Everyone on the team is dedicated to the mission and to helping businesses and consumers. You don’t always see that when you come into a place.”
BUILDING A LOYAL CUSTOMER BASE

1 CREATE A CUSTOMER-FIRST MENTALITY
With limited face-to-face interactions, it’s important to step up your customer service game. Make time for your customers by maintaining transparency, communicating consistently, and answering questions.

2 PERSONALIZE YOUR COMMUNICATION
A first step in creating a memorable customer experience is personalization. A Segment survey found that 71 percent of consumers get frustrated by impersonal encounters by companies. Earn your customer loyalty by building and delivering an authentic experience.

3 START A COMMUNITY
With social media abundant, Entrepreneur recommends creating an online community that encourages customer engagement and user-generated content. Have your customers take pictures of the final product and encourage them to share it on social media.

4 RESPOND TO REVIEWS AND COMPLAINTS
Review sites make it easy for customers to sound off. Whether it’s a one-star rant or a five-star cheer, it’s up to the business to respond positively and openly. Choosing to answer each review promptly and kindly can increase trust in your brand.

5 HONOR PROMISES
Whether there are supply issues, price quotes, or unforeseen mistakes, work to keep the line of communication open with customers. Over-promising a client can break trust and cost you a future project. By honoring promises and operating with transparency, you’re building trust.

Over the past couple months, the staff has had a chance to see her fun side as well. “I was the class clown in school,” she says. “There is a time and place for everything. There’s always accountability, a healthy sense of urgency with organization goals and objectives, but you have to have fun too.”

Lisa shared “I am looking forward to the coming year and digging in to help our team and communities be successful. We are focused on expanding our members’ knowledge and use of all their BBB benefits. At the same time, we are committed to increasing the number of Accredited businesses, in an effort to help our communities further thrive during ever changing times, and increase trust in our community’s marketplace.”

We are excited to have Frohnapfel be part of our BBB family and look forward to the great things to come for our organization and communities of Western Michigan.
Are Your Employees Putting Your Business at Risk?

An article from Speedy Cyber Rescue

We hear it from business leaders all the time: your team, the people in your organization, are your biggest asset. It’s true. But from a cybersecurity standpoint, they are also your biggest risk. Organizations large and small spend a lot of time and money working to protect their network and data. Like castles, they build big walls to fend off attacks. But how secure is your kingdom if an employee opens the gate and lets in the intruder? In the majority of cyberattack cases, that’s exactly what happens.

“You can have the most sophisticated firewall, the most sophisticated anti-virus system or backup system, but they can’t help your business if an employee lets an attacker in the front door.”

– Steve Opoku, President of Speedy Cyber Rescue

Common trouble spots include:

• Phishing email attacks
• Fake websites
• Password compromises
• Using compromised and unsecure WiFi

Phishing emails are among the most common attack points. Attackers send emails that appear legitimate or innocent, but they include downloads or links that give the hackers access to the company system. “All you have to do sometimes is open the email and their tech has launched. So unfortunately, the employees who happened to be the front line are the weakest link.” It is important to train employees on what to avoid, and then continue that training. “Cybersecurity training for staff isn’t something you do once a year. It needs to be ongoing because cyber criminals evolve rapidly,” says Opoku. “Cyber criminals are smart. They are quite intelligent when it comes to human behavior. They know what a person is likely to do, so they exploit that.”

His Portage-based cybersecurity company works with businesses to help protect their data. That includes firewalls and backups, but also training programs for employees. “Employees are the front line of the company, and hackers have figured out how to exploit them to get into sensitive systems,” Opoku says. Most cyber attacks begin with a mistake by an employee that compromises the entire system.
Along with avoiding suspicious emails, Speedy Cyber Rescue makes its customers use password management software, which creates and stores complex passwords that can’t be guessed. Cyber criminals know most people use the same logins and passwords, or similar passwords, for everything they do. So a single compromise can have wide-ranging effects. Password management software allows companies to have complex custom passwords and eliminates a lot of the risk. “With the tools we have at our disposal, nobody should have to remember their passwords anymore,” says Opoku. “There is no reason that should be the reason for a data compromise.”

Businesses of all sizes are at risk of attack, and usually small businesses are the ones that are least prepared and most vulnerable. Speedy Cyber Rescue offers a range of solutions and programs to help prevent such an attack.

Speedy Cyber Rescue is a BBB Accredited Business and can be found at scrmichigan.com
BBB Serving Western Michigan is committed to providing the best possible service to our Accredited Businesses. There are over 4,000 Accredited Businesses in Western Michigan that allow our nonprofit organization to fulfill its mission of promoting trust in the marketplace. We help businesses, educate consumers and shine a light on organizations that are trustworthy and those that are not.

To that end, your BBB has restructured responsibilities of some of our staff to focus on Accredited Business Account Management. This structure will allow for more personal interaction with BBB as the Account Manager will be the single point of contact to assist each and every Accredited Business as needed. Randy Travis (mainly responsible for northern Michigan Accredited Businesses), Kathy Weidman and Monica Kimball will work with a number of our current Accredited Businesses and will work with all new Accredited Companies as they join BBB.

Kristen Nietering, Jonathan Casteel, Sami Nowakowski, Troy Baker, Cassandra Lawler, Katie Grevious and Jack Daley will work with all other Accredited Businesses as their dedicated Account Manager.

The main role of the Account Manager is to provide assistance as needed to the business and to help each Accredited Business take advantage of the many benefits and services available from BBB. There is tremendous value in BBB Accreditation and we want to help you take advantage of it.

Some of the key items your Account Manager can assist with are:

- Updating Business information / your company’s profile on BBB.org
- Access to BBB collateral materials
- Usage of the BBB logo on collateral and on your website
- Preferred placement on BBB.org through advertising / enhanced listings
- Featured article in the Beacon (the quarterly magazine published by BBB Serving Western Michigan)
- Implementing the free app to generate reviews on BBB.org of your company
- Participation in the “Request A Quote” program to help generate leads
- Payment processing

In addition to the regular correspondence sent out by BBB, i.e. the monthly newsletters, press releases, etc., our objective is to reach out individually to every Accredited Business at least once per year. We look forward to working with you over the year. If you need assistance and are not sure who your Account Manager is, please email accountmanagement@westernmichigan.bbb.org and your manager will reach back out.

We are excited about this initiative and look forward to working with you over the course of the year.

The BBB Serving Western Michigan serves a dual role with its Charity Review Program. The program not only plays an important role in helping local donors find a trustworthy place for their donations, but also assists charities to be transparent and operate with best practices. This is even more important with the current state of the economy. COVID-19 not only brought illness and suffering to the world, the pandemic also inspired nefarious activities to some who have less than stellar intentions. It is an exceptionally offensive result when it goes against charities whose sole mission is to help those in the world who are struggling. So scammers are not only harming the charities and their fundraising potential, but also those who are in dire need of assistance.

The Educational Foundation, which is an arm of the BBB Serving Western Michigan, oversees the Charity Review Program and its mission is to not only educate but also support area charities that are interested in becoming BBB Accredited. The program utilizes the Wise Giving Alliance’s 20 Standards of Charity Accountability, a free voluntary review process that has stringent requirements for nonprofits to meet to become a BBB Accredited Charity.

The BBB works with nonprofits that show an interest in becoming accredited to help them attain best practices. There are a variety of documents required, criteria to be met, and questions to be answered during the review process. To make it easier, a comprehensive checklist is available from the BBB so all the documents and information can be gathered prior to the review. The BBB sends the organization an online link to the questionnaire along with their User ID and password and the charity’s representative follows the prompts to upload their information at a time that is best for them. The accreditation process seems daunting at first glance, but a BBB Charity Evaluation Specialist is on hand to help organizations if they have any questions or difficulties.

Affinity Mentoring, a nonprofit located in Grand Rapids, Mich., saw the value in BBB Accreditation and started the process in August and completed the requirements at the end of October.

“We are proud to have received approval from the Better Business Bureau, whose vision is of, “[a]n ethical marketplace where buyers and sellers trust each other,” says Affinity Mentoring Executive Director Cassandra Kiger. “We agree with this vision, and offer this as another opportunity and avenue for the public to provide us feedback on our work and keep us accountable to our commitments in our Strategic Plan to ‘create regular cycles of public feedback on our work, and give power to the community to speak into where we will direct our resources and which projects we will prioritize.’”

The Standards were formed in such a way that even smaller nonprofits have the ability to meet them. It is a litmus test to make sure the organizations are operating with best practices and transparency at any level of annual revenue. Sometimes smaller organizations need help fashioning an annual report or an online privacy policy, and a BBB specialist will aid them.
Mel Trotter Ministries, a nonprofit that earned BBB Accreditation in November 2021, is outspoken about the value of being trusted within the community. Their stated purpose says the ministry exists to demonstrate the compassion of Jesus Christ toward the hungry, homeless and hurting of the greater Grand Rapids area. One of their highly successful campaigns, the “Turkey Drop,” feeds the area hungry over the holiday.

“Mel Trotter Ministries believes and fully understands that the Western Michigan Better Business Bureau is one of the most respected and trustworthy organizations that individuals and organizations look to first for honest information,” shares Gordon Oosting, Chief Financial Officer of Mel Trotter Ministries. “For us to be BBB Accredited means that we have met the rigorous standards of the BBB, and therefore others in the community can place their trust and confidence in us, just as the BBB has trusted us.”

This series of presentations will bring valuable advice to businesses large and small. The first presentation was held January 11th and discussed creating a search-friendly website, which is critical to helping customers find you on google and other search engines. Dominiq Reagh was an East Kentwood High School senior when he applied for the Trust Scholarship in early 2021. Today he is a freshman at the 4-year University of Findlay, where he is studying Strength and Conditioning with a minor in Psychology and Coaching. He is also the winger for their varsity soccer team.

How has your college experience been so far?
“Starting off strong! My classes are a lot of fun and I’m enjoying the difficulty because it’s a challenge for me and I enjoy the subject and learning more about it.”

What does winning the BBB Trust Scholarship mean to you now? What has its impact been?
“Writing my paper for the application I was able to solidify what I believed and then brought that into college with a more solid stance on who I am and what I believe in. It was a huge honor to win the scholarship and award, especially being able to share my story with Ulcerative Colitis. I love educating people on that and any time I can share my story, I do it because it may help some people who are going through the exact same thing.”

Any advice to highschoolers considering applying for the scholarship?
“Just go for it. Just know what you believe - and even if you don’t know what you believe - writing this can help you figure out what your ethics are before you go out and become independent. It can help you figure out who you are and who you want to be in the future. Plus, it was an enjoyable process for me!”

Allie Conner attended Dowagiac High School and has continued her education at Southwestern Michigan College. Conner plans to obtain her general associates before she moves on to Grand Valley State University where she looks forward to studying physical therapy.

How has your college experience been so far?

What does winning the BBB Trust Scholarship mean to you now? What has its impact been?
“It means a lot. Trust means everything to me and the scholarship just showed how much appreciation [the BBB] had for the hard work I put in. I think education matters a lot and that it’s always great to broaden your horizon on things you’re interested in. Honestly, the money helped a lot because I was nervous to have a job my first year of college. This way I’m able to focus more and not worry about the money.”

Any advice to highschoolers considering applying for the scholarship?
“Just go for it! The worst that can happen is that you won’t get it and if you do get it, that’s just money you don’t have to worry about paying back in the future. It’s just a really good opportunity because you get to meet other people that have the same goals and aspirations as you do.”

Kelly Warner attended Coldwater High School and has recently made the move to New York to continue her education at Columbia University. Warner is interested in the study of Human Rights.

How has your college experience been so far?
“I’m really enjoying my classes so far. My experience has been phenomenal, I’m loving it.”

What does winning the BBB Trust Scholarship mean to you now? What has its impact been?
“It has definitely helped me in terms of funding my education. It has also served as a source of pride too in that I was able to win that scholarship through the means of holding on to my core values that I hold in terms of trust and honesty and leadership. Just the fact that there’s a scholarship out there that rewards students and future generations on that basis is really encouraging.”

Any advice to highschoolers considering applying for the scholarship?
“I feel like a lot of highschoolers don’t realize how much they are already acting on these concepts of honesty, trust, and leadership. In our daily actions, a lot of the times we overlook the very fundamental good actions that we take. They shouldn’t let those big topics intimidate them.”

The BBB plans to open applications for the class of 2022 in February. You can find information about the scholarship program at bbb.org/wmiawards and click on Trust Scholarship.
